

Safari Users

While you are opening Safari, choose Safari in the tab on the top of your screen and then go to Preferences and then to Websites. If your setting there is set to 'Never Auto-Play', change it to 'Allow All Auto-Play'. You should be good. If you still do not hear the sound in the coming practice trials, that is probably because of a problem due to your computer. You are not able to continue with the task. Please contact maieryo@msu.edu in that case.

Google Chrome Users

Windows

In Chrome, go to Settings and then choose Privacy and Security and then Site settings. There, open Additional content settings and choose Sound. If the setting 'Allow sites to play sound' is turned on, you should be good. If not, turn it on. If you still do not hear the sound in the coming practice trials, that is probably because of a problem due to your computer. You are not able to continue with the task. Please contact maieryo@msu.edu in that case.

Mac

While you are opening Chrome, choose Chrome in the tab on the top of your screen and then go to Preferences. Choose Privacy and Security and then Site settings. There, open Additional content settings and choose Sound. If the setting 'Allow sites to play sound' is turned on, you should be good. If not, turn it on. If you still do not hear the sound in the coming practice trials, that is probably because of a problem due to your computer. You are not able to continue with the task. Please contact maieryo@msu.edu in that case.

Firefox Users

In Firefox, click on the hamburger menu to your top right. Scroll down and click on Options. Enter "autoplay" in the Find in Options search box at the top. Or, you can click on the Privacy & Security panel to your left, and scroll down to Permissions. Click on Settings to the right of Autoplay to launch the Autoplay Settings dialog box. Under Default for all websites, click on the dropdown menu and set it to 'Allow Audio and Video'. If it is already set to 'Allow Audio and Video', you should be good. If you still do not hear the sound in the coming practice trials, that is probably because of a problem due to your computer. You are not able to continue with the task. Please contact maieryo@msu.edu in that case.

Microsoft Edge

In Microsoft Edge, click the Settings and more button in the top right of your screen. Choose Settings then. It is a button with three dots (looks like [...]). Then, click on Advanced. Under Media autoplay, select the option 'Allow'. If it is already set to 'Allow', you should be good. If you still do not hear the sound in the coming practice trials, that is probably because of a problem due to your computer. You are not able to continue with the task. Please contact maieryo@msu.edu in that case.